Observations on the last Craftsman, about Corruption, Cato's Letters, and a Pamphlet intituled CLODIUS and CICERO.

THE Craftsman, like the Bellman, goes his perpetual Round, makes as much Noise to as little Purpose, and disturbs the Repose of the good People of England, but does them no Good. After his Weekly Cry, Dunkirk, Gibraltar, Armies, Hessian Troops, Impracticable Treaties, Dutchess of Parma, Don Carlos, and Merry-making Fleets, he's come to Corruption again; about which he writes, but makes no Man the wiser or better. Bribery and Corruption are very popular Subjects; and a Man who declaims against them will have Mankind of his Side: Honest Men will really be with him; and Knaves, for their own Sakes, will pretend to be so. But what signifies Declamation? what signifies saying, That the Romans were corrupted and depraved, and lost their Liberty by that Corruption and Depravation; that the Senate was bribed; and the Nobility like stupid Statues, whose Names and Titles were their only Ornaments?

Is this Writing or Reasoning? Is this the Way to remove Corruption? No: There is but one Way in the World to remove Corruption, which is removing the Cause of Corruption; and that is, Mens living beyond their Fortunes. Those, therefore, who would write effectually against Corruption, should lay before Men the Reasons why they should deny themselves all Pleasures which come not within the Reach of their Fortunes; they should shew them that Temperance is the Nursing-Mother of all the Virtues, and Fundamental to Honesty; for the Way to secure Men against Bribery and Corruption is to secure their Honesty; and the Way, perhaps, the only Way to secure their Honesty, is to keep themselves from Distress, by Frugality and Industry. Writers against Corruption should shew Men, that the greatest Good and highest Happiness consists in the right Management of their Passions, and being truly Masters of themselves. Thus they will stand firm against Corruption, and suffer no Man to become their Master. But if the People will follow one another into Luxury, live beyond their Fortunes, and so surround themselves with Distress of all kinds, they will soon make Shipwreck of their Virtue, and become that Man's Slave who will best supply their Wants. The Care of Corruption must therefore begin at home; right Conduct will put an everlasting End to it; but all the Laws of Heaven and Earth will not be able to root it out, while Men place their Happiness in Things out of their own Power. While we live within our Income, we are Proof against all Dishonesty; but as soon as we exceed them, we stand upon the Brink of Ruin; and, if we step forward, are undone for ever. This Lesson of umble Temperance should be taught Mankind, as the Source of all Honesty and of all Happiness too; and as soon as this unfa-fionable Virtue is put in Practice, all Corruption would fall dead before us. But while Men will gratify unreasonable Appetites, and contend who shall appear most wealthy, instead of endeavouring who shall be really most happy, all Preaching, all Writing, and all Laws too against Corruption, will signify just nothing.

But, it seems, Cato has wrote against Corruption; and what then? What is Cato to Mr. D'Anvers? When Cato wrote against Corruption, Publick Corruption, State or Ministerial Corruption, he had a Reason for it; an Occasion was given, the greatest and most deplorable Occasion that ever was known in England; the matchless Wickedness of the South-Sea Scheme was the unfortunate Occasion; when the People were led like Sheep to the Slaughter, and Thousands of Families cover'd with Destruction, by the Contrivance and Artifice of Men in Power: This was a Time to write against Corruption, and the Abuses of Power. But there is no Corruption now, but what is common to all Times equally wealthy, and will always be the Effect of profuse extravagance.

[Price Two-Pence.]

gant Living; nor is there any Abuse of Power that we know of. Mr. D'Anvers may, with as much Propriety, write against the Star-Chamber and High Commission Courts, or against an arbitrary Power of dispensing with Laws, as against Court Corruption, and Ministerial Corruption; because there are no ill Things done by the COURT or MINISTRY, at least none appear to be done. Our Laws and Liberties are inviolably preserved; there are no Plots or Schemes laid to trick us out of our Properties; and there is as much Care taken of the Rights of the People, and their Prosperity too, as the Nature of human Affairs will admit. But when Cato wrote, Ruin and Devastation were scatter'd thro' the Kingdom by Men in exalted Stations; the People were plunder'd by Law establish'd; and robb'd of their Properties by those who were bound to protect them in their Properties. Then Cato greatly spoke, and was universally heard: He spoke about Things, not Persons; and scourg'd Vices, not Men. But because Mr. D'Anvers says 'hat he and Cato are one, we'll shew him the Difference.

Cato had a noble Genius; a large Share of Knowledge; gave useful Instructions, which made the Head wiser, and the Heart better; he arm'd Men against Superstition and Tyranny; he had a high Sense of Liberty and Publick Virtue; great and glowing Sentiments, and a strong nervous Language; so that he cut his Way into the Heart and made Men feel the Truth of what he wrote. But Mr. D'Anvers has not one Feature or Lineament of Cato, and yet would insolently presume to be like Cato: He has a little contracted Genius, he is pert and sawcy, ill bred, half a Gen leman, and half a Scholar: He is a Smatterer in Learning, a Retailer of other Mens Knowledge, a Pedlar in Politicks, and a mere Infant in Reasoning; he has some Wit, but no Judgment; an easy natural Style, but no great Sentiments, nor any Force of Imagination; he appears to have a mean Soul, and writes even for Liberty it self, not for the sake of Liberty, but in spite to one Man. All his Papers are about Persons, not Things; and are full, not of worthy virtuous Sentiments for the Good of Mankind, but of low Artifice, and of Envy and Malice against the Ministry: He Rails, but never Reas ons against the Government; and would impose upon the Publick downright impudent Assertions for real Facts; and yet, this is the Man who would make himself equal to Cato! Hear his Speech in behalf of himself.

"Gentlemen! Cato's Principles and mine are the very same; MY WRITINGS will descend to posterity in the same Light with his, notwithstanding the affected Distinction of Mr Osborne. The Object of our Complaints are the same, and the Subject of our Complaints too: MY PAPERS have been received with the same general approbation; and the Writers AGAINST ME have met with the same general Contempt."

Wondrous indeed! Every Week the Publick is impertinently troubled with these Mountebank Speeches, in favour of himself and his Works; but all signifies nothing: The Publick already does Mr. D'Anvers, and his Works, Justice. Cato has run through several Editions; the Craftsman will never see another; Cato is bought and read by every Body; but no Body buys or reads the Craftsman. So that he may advertize and recommend on; he may tell the People, that his Edition is neat; that they will have Trot's Letters; a View of National Affairs; and an Account of Hessian Troops: But, what then? The People have read those Things, and they will read them no more: Who can help it? Or, who could expect otherwise? For the Subjects are merely Temporary, and calculated only to serve the Purposes of a Nation against their Country. This the People begin to see and feel; Mr. D'Anvers must, therefore, be content to die. But what adds to the Weight of that gloomy Thought, and makes even the King of Terrors more terrible, is, that he must die, and leave Cato behind him; who will flourish with immortal Youth, and live as long as Good Sense and Liberty continue in the World.

But, notwithstanding all these Virtues, the Author of Cato must be abused, only because he stands well with the Court, and is esteemed by the Ministry: To this End, a Pamphlet, intituled Cloadius and Cicero, supposed to be wrote by the same Author, is trump'd up, and Scraps taken out of it, to shew, that Cato, who wrote so honestly and gloriously against Corruption, submitted to the mean Slavery of a Court Distant; and earned the Wages of Servitude, by varnishing over the scandalous Vices of Bribery and Corruption.

But there is nothing more false than this Charge, Th t the Author of Cloadius and Cicero discourages all Regard for publick Liberty; and recommends Penalty as a necessary Evil or Expedient of Government; for there is a vast Difference between saying, that there are some Corruptions which can't be rooted out, and recommending those Corruptions; between saying, that there are some Evils, which, from the Circumstances of Things, can't be entirely removed, and justifying those Evils.

The Design of that Part of the Pamphlet, which Mr. D'Anvers quotes, was to shew the Publick, that as long as Men continue the same Creatures, which they have yet appeared to be, there will be Corruptions; and that there are some Corruptions, arising from certain Junctures of Affairs, of such a Nature, that 'twill be impracticable to endeavour to root them out; and that the very Endeavour may be attended with more Evil than Good. And this was said to shew, that the general Clamours against a Ministry, about Corruption, signified nothing; if they were such only as would cleave to all Times, and belong to all Ministries, or arose necessarily from that Time. And this is true; as 'tis also true, that when ever a Nation is so corrupted by wrong Principles and false Arts, that, if left to themselves, they would choose such Men as would give up their Liberties; 'tis then Right, to drive out that Corruption; or, at least, prevent the ill Effects of it, by such Means as shall be found most effectual to answer that End: And this has been the Case several Times since the Revolution. So that, to preserve the invaluable Blessings obtained by that Revolution, we were forced to have recourse to Means, which, at other Times, and under other Circumstances, would have been wrong. But one Corruption made another necessary; and this, venerable Cato himself knew, who, with all his rigid Stoical Virtue about him, gave Money, and encouraged others to do it: for, all giving of Money, is not Corruption, any more than all killing is Murder. In all Actions, the Intention and the End must be consider'd. We must take Things as they are, and make the best of them; and if we can't do all Good, do what is best upon the Whole: And this is what we must submit to; till we can find a Way to make all Men Wise and Good.

L O N D O N .

Hampton-Court, August 21. An Express arrived here this Day with Letters from Mr. Keene, his Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary at the Court of Spain, dated the 18th Instant, N. S. which bring Advice, That on that Day the King of Spain's Ratifications of the Treaty signed at Vienna the 22d of last Month, N. S. by the Ministers of the Emperor, Great Britain and Spain, for the Execution of the Engagements entered into by the Treaty of Seville the 9th of November 1729, and by the Treaty of Vienna of the 16th of March last, were sent away to Vienna by a Spanish Courier.

By the same Express came Letters from Sir Charles Wager, Admiral of the Blue, and Commander in Chief of the Squadron of his Majesty's Ships which is to attend the Introduction of the Spanish Garrisons; by which we have an Account, That the Squadron which sailed from Spithead the 14th of July O. S. arrived the 1st Instant, O. S. in the Bay of Cadiz, and that Orders had been sent thither to treat the Admiral and the other Officers and Men belonging to his Majesty's Squadron with all manner of Civility; which Orders have been punctually complied with.

Sir Charles Wager, after he came about Cape S. Vincent, sent away Capt. Harvey in his Majesty's Ship the Kinsale with a Compliment to the Governor, and to give him Notice of his coming with the Squadron, and that he would salute the Town of Cadiz with 15 Guns, if he were assured that he would return the Salute with the like Number, which is the Custom on the like Occasions; and the Governor answered the Compliment with great Civility, and promised to comply with the Proposal relating to the Salute. The Admiral also sent his Compliments to the Commanding Officer of the Spanish Men of War in the Harbour, and proposed, that to prevent any Disputes in Point of Ceremonial, no Salute should be given or expected on either Side between his Majesty's Ships and those of the King of Spain: The Marquis de Mari, Lieutenant General or Vice Admiral of the Navy of Spain, received the Admiral's Compliment with great Complaisance, and readily agreed to what he had proposed. Before Sir Charles Wager entered the Bay, four Gentlemen came on board him with a Compliment from the Marquis de Mari. As soon as the Admiral came to an Anchor he saluted the Town with 15 Guns, and was answered with the same Number. Then two Gentlemen came with a Compliment from the Governor. The next Morning the Admiral sent an Officer on Shore to return his Compliments to the Marquis de Mari and to the Governor, and to invite them to Dinner. They both came on board him, and the Governor stay'd and dined with him, but the Marquis de Mari excused himself, and invited the Admirals and all the Captains of the Fleet to dine with him the next Day. The Marquis and the Governor, at their Departure from on board the Admiral, were each of them saluted with 15 Guns. The Day following, being the 3d O. S. the Admiral and most of the Captains dined with the Marquis de Mari, as did also the Governor, and they had a very great Entertainment; and in the Evening the Admiral went and returned the Governor's Visit. At the Admiral's coming off from the Shore to go on board his Ship, he was saluted by the Town with 15 Guns.

On the 5th, O. S. in the Afternoon, Sir Charles Wager went on Shore and set out for Seville, where he arrived the next Morning; and about Noon, being accompanied by Mr. Keene, he made a Visit to the Marquis de la Paz, first Secretary of State and of the Dispatches, who returned it in the Afternoon; and in the Evening he likewise visited M. Patinho, Governor of the Council of the Finances, Superintendent General of the Revenues, and Secretary of State and of the Dispatches for the Affairs of the Marine, the Indies, and the Treasury; and these Visits passed with all suitable Demonstrations on both Sides of Friendship and Esteem.

On the 7th, O. S. between Two and Three in the Afternoon, Sir Charles Wager, accompanied by Mr. Keene, and attended by several Gentlemen who came with him from on board the Squadron, and by all the British Merchants and other Gentlemen of this Nation residing at Seville, was introduced to an Audience of the King and Queen of Spain. He acquainted the King with the Occasion of his coming into those Seas with the Squadron of his Majesty's Ships under his Command, and that he was ready to concert and agree with his Ministers and Officers, in Conjunction with Mr. Keene, whatever might remain to be adjusted with relation to the Expedition; and he made proper Compliments to them in his Majesty's Name. Their Catholic Majesties received him most graciously, and each returned an Answer, expressing their great Esteem and Value for the King his Master, adding some personal Compliments to himself; and after the Audience was over, the Gentlemen who accompanied Sir Charles Wager and all the Gentlemen, both those from the Fleet, and those who are Inhabitants of the Place, were invited to Dinner at M. Patinho's, who gave them a most magnificent Entertainment. Sir Charles Wager, in the short Time he had been at Seville, had been visited by all the Grandees and other Persons of Distinction at Court, with all possible Demonstrations of Esteem and Respect.

Sir Charles Wager hoped to be able to finish his Business there in three or four Days, and would then return to the Squadron and proceed to Gibraltar, to take on board two Battalions to be detached from that Garrison, being his Majesty's Quota of Land Forces to attend the Introduction of the Spanish Garrisons.

The Spanish Fleet for the Expedition is to consist of 20 Men of War of the Line, whereof eight were at Cadiz, six were cruising in the Mediterranean under the Command of the Conde de Clavijo, and daily expected home in order to join the former, and the remainder were to arrive in very few Days from the Bay of Biscay: And the Land Forces for the Introduction were to be taken on board at Barcelona, where they lay ready to embarque.

We hear that the Squadron under Sir George Walton is ordered to be paid off, except some Guard Ships, which are to lie at Plymouth, Portsmouth, Chatham and Sheerness.

Several others of his Majesty's Men of War are ordered home from their Stations in the West Indies.

His Majesty has been pleased to constitute and appoint Sir John Stanley, Bart. Thomas Walker, Esq; Sir John Evelyn, Sir James Campbell, Bart. John Campbell, Bryan Fairfax, Henry Hale, George Drummond, John Hill, Gwyn Vaughan, George Rols, Wardle George Wefby, Esqrs. and Sir Robert Baylis, Knt. to be his Majesty's Commissioners for the Management of the Customs in Great Britain, Wales, and the Town of Berwick upon Tweed.

Thursday Julian Brown, a Jew, was committed to Newgate by Justice De Veil, being charged with a Street Robbery.

On Wednesday the King, Queen, the Duke, together with the Prince of Royal, the Prince of Amelia, and the Prince of Mary, went to Richmond New Park to hunt a Stag, the Prince of Caroline being left at Court with the Prince of Wales. In the Chase a Stag started upon the Prince of Amelia's Horse, who taking Fright, her Royal Highness was thrown, but received no Hurt; the Hon. Mr. Fitz Williams, Page of Honour to his Majesty, fell with his Horse in a Coney Burrow, and was much bruised, the Horse tumbling over him on the Ground, and he was carried off by the Lord Albemarle to a Keeper's House, to be let Blood: A Servant belonging to the Queen's Coachmaker likewise fell, as he was riding at a little Distance behind the Queen's Chaise, and was hurt. Her Majesty and the Prince of Mary in the Chaise came in at the Death of the Stag, who ran about two Hours.

On Friday, last Week, the Worshipful Company of Mercers agreed to give the Sum of 60 l. for the Relief of the Sufferers by Fire at Blandford, Tiverton, and Ramsey, to be distributed as follows, viz. to Blandford 20 l. Tiverton 25 l. Ramsey 15 l.

Extract of a Letter from Cadiz, dated Aug. 14.
Two Days ago arriv'd here Sir Charles Wager, with the Fleet under his Command, who was received here with the utmost Complaisance, and is to set out for Seville this Week; but if our Fleet is to wait for the Spanish one, in all likelihood they will winter here, at least at present they move but slowly.

You have seen that the Arrival of the Asques has not produced the Delivery of the Treasure of the Flotilla, as expected; but we hope that the Patience of Sir Charles Wager will produce some agreeable Change in the Affairs of the Commerce of this Place.

On the 11th Instant, was held a Meeting of the West India Commerce, in which the Prior of the Consulado was deputed to go to Seville, with Power to adjust with Don Joseph Patinho, about the Delivery of the Money brought by the Flotilla and Asques on reasonable Terms. It is said, he had Orders to offer the King a Loan of 500,000 Dollars, if necessary. The next Day he set out accordingly; but what the Success may be, is uncertain, he having so great and able a Statesman to deal with.

It is believed the Asques or Quicksilver Ships may sail in two or three Days for La Vera Cruz; and with them the Registers for the Carreras and Havana.

Extract of a Letter from Barcelona, dated the 19th Instant, N. S. Since my last the Gibraltar Man of War, Capt. John Bing, arrived here from Lisbon. This Port and City being fixed on for the Rendezvous, not only of the Troop, but of the Ships designed to be employ'd in transporting Don Carlos to Italy, occasions here a perpetual Hurry, and every thing is in great Forwardness, the Troops being at Hand, and the Ships for transporting the Horse all ready. They take here daily about 120 Quinlals (each about 100 Weight) of Biscuit. It is intended that the Grand Fleet of Ships of War, employed in this Expedition, shall, including the British Squadron, amount to 35 Sail, beside 7 Gallies. Don Carlos is to come to this City by Land, and imbarke here for Italy. His Cloaths and Equipage are now making here, which will cost about 5000 Piftoles.

On Thursday both Houses of Parliament met at Westminster, pursuant to their Prorogation, and were by Virtue of a Commission under the Great Seal, signed by his Majesty, directed to the Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor, the Right Hon. the Lord Delaware, Treasurer of the Household, and the Right Hon. the Lord Torrington, Fifth Lord of the Admiralty) further prorogued to Tuesday the 9th of November.

The Lottery will begin Drawing about the 12th of October next.

On Monday next the Craggs, lately arrived from the East Indies, will be paid at the Pay-Office in the East India House.

His Majesty's Ship the Gibraltar, a 6th Rate, of 20 Guns, Capt. John Stanley Commander, being order'd Home, is daily expected from Lisbon.

As is his Majesty's Ship the Squirrel, a 6th Rate, of 20 Guns, Capt. Osborne, from Newfoundland.

And the Winchelsea, a 6th Rate, of 20 Guns, Capt. Thomas Waterhouse, is also order'd Home from Newfoundland.

The Lords of the Treasury have lately been pleased to order the paying the Sum of 64230 l. 11 s. 2 d. to the Treasurer of his Majesty's Navy, to be in Readiness for the paying off, &c. of his Majesty's Ships.

We are credibly informed that five Men of War are put out of Commission, and that 15 more will speedily, some be reduced to Guard Ships, and others put out of Commission.

On Saturday the Hunters 25 Guineas Plate, being run for by Hunters, and rode by Gentlemen, was won by Capt. Gee's Fox Hunter, which was rode by Capt. Thompson.

On Wednesday, at the Races on Bromley Common in Kent, the Purse of 10 Guineas was won by Mr. Wade's Black Mare; beside which there started Sir Jeremiah Sambrook's Bay Gelding, Sir Robert Fagg's Chestnut Gelding, and Mr. Harvey's Grey Stone Horse.

On Tuesday last Mr. Hurst, an Undertaker in Eagle-Street, was robbed of 25 l. in his Return from the Burial of the Lady Atkyns, of Little Ormond Street, at Clapham.

Wednesday the Grand Jury, at the Sessions at Hicks's Hall, found a Bill against Mr. Rayner, near Temple Bar, for publishing a seditious Libel.

On Saturday Night last the Prince of Wales, playing at Quadrille in the Drawing Room at Hampton Court, complain'd of a Shivering and Pain in his Head, and thereupon went to Bed; the next Morning his Royal Highness had a strong Fever upon him, but by the Advice and Assistance of Dr. Tissot it began to abate on Mon day at Noon; his Royal Highness kept his Bed till Tuesday, when he arose and walk'd about his Chamber, his Fever being brought to a regular Intermission.

Yesterday arrived an Express, with Advice that the Dutches of Parma had declared she was not with Child.

It having been inserted in some of the Papers, that his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury had given twenty Pounds to the Sufferers by Fire at Blandford, we are assured that his Grace has actually given to the said Sufferers One Hundred and Twenty Pounds.
